Nature Lends Its Beauty to the Scene

As Distinguished Soldiers and Statesman Solemnly Convey the Remains of the Martyred President to a Resting Place in Canton's Beautiful City of the Dead--The Casket Not Opened Today.

Special by wire to Times-Democrat.

Canton, Sept. 19.—The body of the late President was placed in its temporary sepulcher this afternoon while thousands stood in West Lawn cemetery mourning for the nation's chief. President Roosevelt and his cabinet, as especial honorary pall bearers, the local honorary pall bearers and troops A. of Cleveland, assembled at the McKinley house at 12:30 o'clock. In a short time the casket was borne from the house and then to the first M. E. church, of which the late president was a member and a pastor. The march to the church was in this order: Canton Grand Army band; Troup A, President Roosevelt and cabinet; Governor Nash and Hon. Gov. Caldwell; Judge Williams of the Ohio supreme court and Henry W. J. Ford, president of board of equalizers of the District of Columbia; local honorary pall bearers; funeral car; family party and a detachment from the Canton Post, Grand Army of the Republic, followed. The church walls were hidden by flowers and wreaths. The services were simple. Rev. O. B. Milligan, of the First Presbyterian church in which the president and Mrs. McKinley were married, delivered the opening prayer, which Rev. John Hall, of Trinity Reformed church, read from the scriptures. Rev. E. P. Herbruck, of Trinity Reformed church, followed with scriptural reading and the European quartet sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." "Lead Kindly Light" was sung by a double quartet selected from the local churches. The funeral oration followed. It was delivered by Rev. C. E. Manchester, of the First Methodist church, who was a member of the same company in the 2nd Ohio Volunteers, as the late president. The benediction was pronounced by Monsignor Thorpe. The face of the deceased was not exposed to view, marks of death being too plain.

There were floral tributes from every quarter of the globe and the church and cemetery were literally filled with them.

The Funeral Sermon.
Dr. Manchester, McKinley's war minister and home pastor, delivered the funeral sermon. It was of great length and a beautiful tribute. He said in part: "Not only was McKinley brave, heroic and honest; he was as gallant a knight as ever rode the lists for a lady love when knighthood was in flower. The sweet and tender story of his marriage every one knows and his whole life ran in this one groove of love. After receiving his terrible wound his first thought was that the terrible news might be broken gently to his wife. He was a Christian in broadest, noblest sense of the word. He believed in prayer and one who saw this great soul pass away tells me he never saw a death so peaceful as a dying man so crowned with serenity. The people of the land are the chief mourners and all the nations of the earth weep with them. He went out with light of the morning on his brow, but with his task set and a purpose to complete it. We take him back a mighty conqueror." The speaker ceased and then came the benediction and McKinley's body passed onward to the tomb followed by the military and civic pageant and surrounded by respectful hush and the genuine regard of thousands of his fellow countrymen.

NO COLLAPSE
But Mrs. McKinley Was Unable to Attend the Funeral.
Special by wire to Times-Democrat.
Canton, Sept. 19.—Abner McKinley told Harry West, late last night: "Mrs. McKinley is failing perceptibly. There has been no collapse, however." This morning Secretary Cortelyou said: "Mrs. McKinley passed a quiet night. She will not attend the funeral but there has been no collapse."

LONDON IN MOURNING

THE EMPEROR

Special by wire to Times-Democrat.
Vienna, Sept. 19.—The McKinley memorial services held here today were attended by Emperor Franz Josef and many notables.

KING EDWARD
Sends a Message of Condolence to Mrs. McKinley.

Special by wire to Times-Democrat.
London, Sept. 19.—King Edward today wired Ambassador Choate, requesting that his sympathy be conveyed to Mrs. McKinley. The King's message read: "I feel most deeply for her in this hour of her great affliction, and pray God to give her strength to bear her heavy cross. Our thoughts today are specially with the American nation when its distinguished President is laid to rest."

(Signed, Edward R.)
SENATOR FORAKER
Pays a Magnificent Tribute at Cincinnati Meeting.

Special by wire to Times-Democrat.
Cincinnati, Sept. 19.—Senator Foraker paid a magnificent tribute to McKinley at the memorial meeting here today and said "For gentleness of nature and nobility of character he is without a rival since Sir Philip Sidney."

THE CASKET
Was Not Opened On Account of the Condition of the Remains.

Special by wire to Times-Democrat.
Canton, Sept. 19.—The coffin was not opened today. The marks of suffering and emaciation of the body were a shock to all and it was deemed best to close the casket for ever to the sight of the mourners.

CLOSING SCENES
Of the Nation's Sad Tragedy Were Very Impressive.

Canton, O., Sept. 19.—The closing act of an awful tragedy is being enacted here this afternoon—the committal of the remains of the late William McKinley to the vault at Westlawn cemetery. The last sad scene is marked with beautiful and impressive religious services and with solemn pomp and pageantry, reverently those who, and best known the beloved dead, paid tribute to the martyred president, who had forgotten the illustrious career of the statesman in the loss of a great personal friend who had grown dearer to them with the passing of years. They hardly noticed the president of the United States or his cabinet or the senators or the generals and admirals in their resplendent uniforms. The beautiful flag-draped casket which contained the body of their friend and fellow townsman had all their thoughts. He left them only two weeks ago in the full strength of his manhood, and they had brought him back dead. Anguish was in the heart of every man, woman and child. The entire population of the little city, thousands from all over Ohio, the full strength of the national guard of the state—eight regiments, three batteries of artillery, one battalion of engineers, 6,000 men in all—the governor, lieutenant governor and a justice of the supreme court, representing the three branches of the state government, participated in the final exercises.

When the hour approached for the conveying of the body to the church, a great multitude surged in front of the McKinley residence, lined each side of the street leading to the chapel and choked the intersecting highways. The casket was borne from the residence by the pallbearers, with military and civic escort, the president and other distinguished persons following. Mrs. McKinley remained at home, on the advice of her physician, Dr. Rixey. Presently the hearse proceeded and soon the casket rested in a spacious aisle of the First Methodist Episcopal church, where the martyred president was formerly a communicant and also a trustee. The funeral services began shortly after 1:30 p. m. There were brief by the expressed wish of the family. Rev. O. B. Milligan, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, in which President and Mrs. McKinley were married 30 years ago, made the opening prayer. Dr. John Hall of the Trinity Lutheran church made the first scriptural reading, and Dr. E. P. Herbruck of the Trinity Reformed church the second. Dr. C. E. Manchester, pastor of the late president's church, delivered the only address. He dwelt at some length on the virtues of the beloved dead. A quartet then sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," and another quartet rendered Cardinal Newman's "Lead, Kindly Light."

Funeral Cortege.
An imposing procession, consisting of many of the Grand Army posts in the state, the national guard of Ohio, 5,000 strong, details of regulars from all branches of the service, fraternal, social and civic organizations and representatives of commercial bodies from all over the country, the governors of several states with their staffs, the house and senate of the United States and cabinet and president of the United States followed the remains to Westlawn cemetery, where they were placed in a receiving vault, awaiting the time when they will be laid in the grave beside the two dead children who were buried years ago.

There will be a short service at the receiving vault, consisting of prayer and a scriptural reading by Dr. C. E. Manchester and Bishop I. W. Joyce of Minneapolis. A selection will be sung at the vault by a quartet from Pittsburg Commandery No. 1, Knights Templar. The population of Canton is only 31,000, and it is estimated that 100,000 visitors are here. The railway facilities and accommodations are entirely inadequate to care for the multitudes that are here, although the local committee did everything in its power to provide food and shelter. Thousands walked the streets Wednesday night, unable to find lodging. Many of the officials from Washington were obliged to sleep in the cars they came in. President Roosevelt, his naval aide, Captain Cowles, Secretary Root and Assistant Secretary Hill are at the spacious residence of Mrs. George D. Harter on Market street. A company of the Ohio militia guards the house. The cabinet officers and high army and navy officials are quartered at private houses.

The number and beauty of the floral tributes to the illustrious dead surpass belief. Flowers literally came by the ton. The households of the country seemed to have been emptied to supply them.

Mrs. McKinley stood the night and morning bravely, and in the opinion of her physician would be able to go through her trying part of the final ceremonies.

President Roosevelt and the official party will start back to Washington at 7 o'clock tonight.

The Last Look.
All through Wednesday afternoon and evening the crowd passed the catafalque, approximately at the rate of 100 every minute, making in the five hours in which the body lay in state a total of 50,000 people, practically a full equal to the actual population of Canton. When the doors were closed at 6 o'clock the line, four abreast, stretched fully one mile from the courthouse, and people were still coming from the side streets to take their places in line.

At 6 o'clock the doors were closed to the public and preparations made for removing the body to the McKinley residence on North Market street, seven squares from the courthouse. Canton commandery of the Grand Army acted as escort, and there was no following. Arrived at the house, the escort formed in line in the street, presenting arms, while the coffin, borne up by the body bearers, was taken into the house. It was placed in the front parlor, where it remained until it was removed to the church this afternoon.

Secretary Cortelyou will return to Washington with the president tonight to gather up the late president's personal effects, and will later return to Canton to aid Mrs. McKinley in strengthening out his private affairs.

Embalmer's Contentions.
Canton, O., Sept. 19.—Among those at the courthouse while the body of the late president lay in state was the Buffalo undertaker who embalmed the body, and came on here to transfer his duties to the local funeral director. He received a dispatch from his business associate at Baltimore saying that some comment was being made concerning the haste with which the casket was closed, owing to the condition of the embalming. He stated, however, that the condition of the remains after the autopsy made it impossible to properly perform the usual offices of embalming, and he risked in justice to himself and his associates that this fact be stated on his authority.

Italian's Narrow Escape.
Canton, O., Sept. 19.—Considerable excitement was caused in the public square. Some one accused an Italian, who afterward gave his name as Carmine Deviatro, of saying he would kill President Roosevelt. The man, who could speak hardly a word of English, became frightened and answered yes and no at random to the questions that were volleyed at him, invariably giving the wrong answer, and in a moment a great crowd had surrounded him and the cry of "lynch him" was raised. Major Marquis, with a company of Ohio militia, formed a hollow square and rescued the man, who was taken to police headquarters for his own protection. The police do not believe the man contemplated harm.

Russian View of Roosevelt.
St. Petersburg, Sept. 19.—The Russian says: "President Roosevelt is a genuine fanatic for imperialism and pan-Americanism. He will retouch all President McKinley's accomplishments in foreign policy. With President Roosevelt will begin an era of pan-Americanism." After quoting an inaccurate version of President Roosevelt's last speech, the Rossiya declares the Germans will be taught that the Monroe doctrine is no joke, and that the United States is supreme throughout America.

Monument to McKinley.
Columbus, O., Sept. 19.—State and municipal buildings were deserted and all business suspended here during the afternoon. About 200 state and city officials attended the funeral of the late president at Canton. A public memorial service will be held at Columbus auditorium this evening. Subscriptions are being received by a local party for the erection of a McKinley monument in one of the city parks.

Olney Censured.
Falmouth, Mass., Sept. 19.—According to the affidavit of a citizen of this village, Michael Conway, a coachman for Hon. Richard Olney, former secretary of state, in commenting upon the shooting of President McKinley said: "It is a good thing President McKinley was shot; he should have been killed long ago." Mr. Olney was advised of the matter and it was reported that the man had been discharged. Not being able to verify the report of such action, 100 citizens determined to give Conway a coat of tar and feathers. The men marched to Mr. Olney's home to find out whether the coachman was still there. The former secretary of state refused to appear at their demand. At the town hall a resolution was adopted saying that the "course pursued by Hon. Richard Olney, at a time when the nation is in mourning, is an insult to American citizenship."

Mob Chased a Preacher.
St. Paul, Sept. 19.—Rev. Albert Dahlquist narrowly escaped from a mob of about 1,000 people who were demanding that he be lynched. Dahlquist is alleged to have made a speech in Minneapolis a few days ago in which he referred to the assassination of President McKinley as a "noble deed." He appeared at a hall here to preach, where a crowd of over 1,000 had assembled. As soon as he was seen a rush was made for him. He had anticipated trouble, however, and a squad of policemen acted as a body guard. They had great difficulty in protecting the man and at last he broke away, jumped out of a window and ran down the street with the mob at his heels. Dahlquist outfooted his pursuers, however, and escaped.

Day at Philadelphia.
Philadelphia, Sept. 19.—President McKinley's funeral day found business in Philadelphia as near to complete suspension as it can possibly be. All the great department stores, industrial establishments, small business places and all the exchanges are closed for the day, and in fact every sort of industry, with the exception of the railroads, remained still while the last scene of the national tragedy is being enacted in the Ohio town. All the streetcars ceased moving for five minutes, from 3:29 to 3:33 p. m.

Socialist Attacked.
Springfield, Mo., Sept. 19.—Several anarchists live here and the Chicago police a few days ago requested that they be watched. Three men went into a trunk factory, dragged the proprietor, Fred Young, into the street, and assaulted him. Young says he is a socialist and not an anarchist. His place is under police protection, and further violence is feared. H. M. Tichenor, editor of The New Dispensation, a publication with anarchist tendencies, has left the city on the advice of the police.

Governor Warned.
Trenton, N. J., Sept. 19.—Governor Voorhees received a postal card postmarked Hoboken, N. J., which read as follows: "You want to keep quiet and keep your detectives away from here, or you will get what McKinley got. We are looking for your kind." The card bore no signature. It is thought that it came from anarchists at Hoboken, as state detectives and secret service men have been keeping a close watch on them since the shooting of President McKinley.

Scoffer Sentenced.
New York, Sept. 19.—As Magistrate Cornell was leaving the Essex Market police court he was accosted by a man who spoke sneeringly of a mourning band which the magistrate wore on his left sleeve in memory of President McKinley. The magistrate at once arrested the man and took him back to the court, where he said he was William Davis, a shoemaker of Troy, N. Y. Magistrate Cornell sentenced him to Blackwell's island for two months.

Run Out of Town.
Marshfield, Or., Sept. 19.—John Peterson, a foreigner, who says he is a Norwegian, was run out of Marshfield on account of utterances against the late President McKinley. Two men living on Coos river are reported to have expressed satisfaction at President McKinley's assassination. A party has been formed to visit them.

Alderman Apologized.
Cork, Sept. 19.—At the meeting of the common council of Cork, Alderman Cave handsomely apologized for the references he made to the late President McKinley last Friday, when he opposed a resolution of sympathy proposed by Sir John Scott, declaring that Mr. McKinley was no friend of Ireland, but a friend of Great Britain. He expressed deep regret at having taken this attitude. The common council then adopted a resolution expressing abhorrence of the crime and sympathy with Mrs. McKinley and

The Corba was on her first trip from New Castle. She was turbine fitted. Mr. Berner, manager of the Parsons Turbine Co., was also on board.

SIX

Passengers Met Instant Death

In the Wreck

That was Caused by an Open Switch.

Passenger Train Collided With a Freight at Brockton, Mass.

The Former Train was Running at the Rate of Forty Miles an Hour When the Collision Occurred.

Brockton, Mass., Sept. 19.—A switch not properly set brought a passenger express and a heavy freight train together, with the resultant deaths of six passengers on the express train and injuries to 25 others on the main line of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad at Avon. The express was from Boston and it was running 40 miles an hour at the time of the accident. Of the six persons who were killed, but four have been identified, and these are: Everett Joyce of Brockton, of Joyce & Fletcher, shoe manufacturers; Gustavus Hay, Jr., lawyer, of Boston; Miss M. W. Toukin of Oil City, Pa., a student at Howard seminary, Bridgewater; William J. Coughlin, Lowell, real estate dealer of Boston. The two unidentified bodies are those of women, one elderly and very large in figure. The other unidentified victim was apparently 28 years of age, light hair, evidently a Swede.

The bodies were taken to a freight house near by. Of the 25 injured those most seriously hurt were taken to the Brockton hospital on a special train. The accident occurred about 1,000 feet above the Avon station, between two stretches of tuckier and by the side of a steep embankment.

A freight train of 30 cars loaded with granite, coal and gravel had just been made up on a siding and was proceeding south in the same direction as the express. Engineer Sheldon of the freight train figured that he had four minutes to spare to get on a sidetrack further down.

One of his train's crew had set the switch of a "cross-over" in such a manner that when the freight engine struck it it was turned on the main track. Engineer Sheldon did not notice this switch quickly enough to enable him to stop his train, and before he realized it the express dashed past on the other track.

The engine of the express and the baggage car succeeded in getting by before the freight engine reached the train, but the second car on the train, the smoker, was struck squarely in the middle and turned over, being thrown down the steep embankment, landing on its side in the soft mud. The third car, a passenger coach, was dragged over by the force of the impact, and likewise landed on its side in the ditch. The last car of the train stayed on the track.

The collision came with such sudden crash that the passengers in the three cars were thrown with great force from their seats. As the cars were instantly thrown on their sides, many passengers fell upon each other, and those underneath were forced through the windows into the mud below. The broken seats and heavy pieces of timber pinned them down. Many were forced through the windows by the sudden shock. The cylinder on the right side of the freight engine was thrown off and scattered

BRIGHT GEMS

From Editorials of William J. Bryan's Commoner.When organized labor goes on a political strike and refuses to work for the political supremacy of politicians who cater to trusts and monopolies there will be more hopes of success.A Republican politician in Kentucky wanted a postoffice held by a widow whose husband has been a working Democrat. After vainly striving to oust the widow the man married her and became postmaster.
When a Republican starts out after an office he will generally accomplish his point.Five men may meet secretly and lay plans to crush an independent manufacturer, and that is called financier. Five hundred men may meet openly and endeavor to persuade their fellows to stand by the just demands of organized labor, and that is called intimidation and punished by prison sentences.A number of mouth-pieces of trusts and monopolies profess to be greatlyscandalized because the striking steel workers broke certain contracts said to have been made with their employers. But these mouth-pieces insist by implication that it is right and proper for the strikers to break their contracts with their fellows and repudiate their unions. Has it come to pass that it is no sin to break a contract unless it happens to be a contract made with a trust?The man appointed postmaster at Havana when the American postal system was inaugurated in the island, found himself in pressing need of $400 shortly after assuming charge of the office. He drew the amount from the funds on hand, expecting to replace it as his salary came due. Unfortunately an inspector came around before he could replace the money. The result was that the postmaster was declared to be a defaulter, and was relieved of duty and put under arrest. Justice moved with swiftness in the case of this man, and he was speedily sentenced to pay a fine of $400—the amount he took from the office. But in the case of Neely things are different. While every nerve was strained to punish the postmaster who took $400, every nerve seemed to be strained to protect Neely, the director of posts and confidant of Rathbone, who took thousands of dollars. If justice wants to maintain her reputation for impartiality she should snatch the bandage from her eyes and go after Neely as earnestly as she did after the defaulting postmaster.

USE FOUND FOR APPENDIX.

Western Doctor Promotes New Theory Regarding the Organ.A theory was advanced by Dr. E. P.
Hershey of Denver at the meeting of the Rocky Mountain Interstate Medical association the other day which, it is said, will excite great interest in the medical world. The doctor claims to have found, according to the Philadelphia Times, a function for the vermi-form appendix, which heretofore has been believed to be a functionless organ. According to the theory, the ver-miform appendix is a secretary organ, the function of which is the lubrication of the beginning of the large intestine.
The arguments the doctor advances in support of his theory are very interesting, but the other doctors claim they are not conclusive."Dr. Hershey's argument is a very strong one," said one of the delegates, "but it is not backed by facts. I protest against such a theory going out from this meeting. It will excite a great deal of comment, and if we are wrong it will do us no good."
The association refused to consider Dr. Hershey's paper in its original form, and he was given a year to investigate and make a report.The fellow who laughs and grows fat usually finds that the laugh is turned on him.

PARTY AMENITIES AND ETHICS

As Defined by Charles Dick of the Republican State Executive Committee.

TOO INTENT UPON SECURING THE OFFICES

To Respectfully Consider the Letter of Chairman Daugherty Proposing a Quiet Campaign on Account of President McKinley's Condition.How was it received by the official representative of the Republican organization? Not in the spirit in which it was written, but in the spirit of the partisan who appeared to be ready, if not anxious, to turn a great crime and a great public calamity to political account.In a long letter, bristling in every paragraph with partisanship, he bluntly refused to listen to the proposition submitted to him. He calls attention to the fact that when the Democratic committee in 1891, when President Garfield was assassinated, Governor Nash, who was then chairman, rejected it with a partisan slogan and an appeal to party prejudices, as Dick did.One of the most remarkable chapters of party history in Ohio was written last week when the dastardly attempt of an anarchist to assassinate President McKinley, and it remained for General Charles Dick, the Republican chairman, to seize upon it for partisan and electioneering purposes.On Friday, September 6, within 30 minutes after the attempted assassination, the Democratic committee sent the following telegram:"Mrs. President McKinley, Buffalo, N. Y.:"We join with the whole nation in our profound sympathy for you and the president in the great trouble which has come upon you.""M. A. DAUGHERTY, Chairman,
"C. F. GILLIAM, Secretary."
"Democratic State Executive Committee."A few minutes later the following was sent out by the executive committee through the Associated Press to all parts of the Union:"We are not acquainted with the details of the affair, but it is needless to say how profoundly shocked and horrified the officers and members of the Democratic state executive committee were by the news of the attempted assassination of President McKinley.""Whatever our political differences may be, they do not detract in the slightest from our regard for McKinley as a man or the high honor and esteem we hold for him as the chief magistrate of the nation, to whom every loyal citizen looks up with respect as their chosen ruler.""M. A. DAUGHERTY, Chairman,
"C. F. GILLIAM, Secretary."
"Democratic State Executive Committee."Colonel James Kilbourne, the Democratic nominee for governor, was profoundly shocked when told of the shooting of the president. He had long known President McKinley, and to him it was the striking down of a friend, not alone of the head of the government. In speaking of the deed, Colonel Kilbourne said:"The president's death at this time, even from natural causes, would be a great misfortune to the country. If he should die from the attack of the assassin it would be a national calamity.
I rejoice as must all his countrymen, that the latest report gives hope of his recovery."This is preliminary to what followed between the two state committees.
Animated by the lofty spirit expressed in his telegrams above, Chairman Daugherty, while there were still grave and serious doubts of the president's recovery, and a certainty that a painful and tedious convalescence, at best, would follow, addressed the following note to Chairman Dick:"Columbus, O., Sept. 9, 1901.
"Hon. Charles W. Dick, Chairman Republican State Committee, Columbus, Ohio:"My Dear Sir—Ohio is the home of President McKinley, and the recent attempt at his assassination has aroused the indignation and horror not only of all the citizens of his own state, irrespective of party, but of the nation as well.""It is the hope and prayer of all the people that he may be speedily restored to health and resume the performance of the duties of his high office.""The Democratic state executive committee believes that both political parties in Ohio can best manifest the great respect which they entertain for the president, both personally and officially, and their sincere wishes for his recovery, by omitting political meetings from the conduct of the campaign.""I, therefore, on behalf of the Democratic state committee, propose to you that each committee withdraw all announcements already made for such meetings, and that no political addresses be delivered by speakers of either party at any time preceding the election. I understand that a similar proposal was made by the Democratic committee in Ohio in the year Garfield was assassinated, and that the same was accepted by the then Republican committee. Awaiting your reply, I beg to subscribe myself, very respectfully yours.""M. A. DAUGHERTY, Chairman." Nothing more chivalrous or more becoming to the official representative of a great party, in the hour of the grief, anxiety and doubt of the nation, could be conceived than this letter of the Democratic chairman, seeking to alleviate all partisan animosities in the sad state of the stricken president while awaiting the result of his cruel wounds.

this year.

General Dick speaks of its being dishonest "for McKinley's friends in his own state to abandon the contest," as though the voters are not capable of expressing their judgment at the polls, without passing through the bitterness of the ordinary campaign under existing circumstances.Then follows a specimen of unparalleled insolence and partisan vulgarity in these words:"If it seem best to your committee to withdraw from antagonizing those principles and to cease from further advocacy of political doctrines which the president has always believed to be perilous to the prosperity of the entire country we shall be very glad indeed to be advised to that effect and to have your hearty co-operation hereafter in the maintenance of more wholesome public policies."Then he expresses the hope that we will have a "clean" campaign, and one free from "aspirities" and "unwarranted personalities."That is the kind of campaign the Democrats conducted up to the hour of the attempted assassination, and there will be no variation from it hereafter; but what may we expect from the man who seeks to make political capital out of existing conditions, and who turned Mr. Daugherty's high-minded proposal aside with cynical contempt and insult, for reasons plain to any intelligent man?Hon. M. A. Daugherty, chairman of the Democratic state committee, commencing in detail upon Chairman Dick's reply to his request for an abandonment of the speaking campaign in Ohio out of respect to President McKinley, says:"I shall not reply to the letter of Mr. Dick. Of course, I do not question his right to decline our proposal for any reason which might commend itself to his judgment. That privilege we must and do cheerfully concede to him. However, I was much surprised to receive an answer consisting so largely of political dissertation on campaign issues.""The suggestion that the Democratic committee might, if it so desired, abandon its principles was quite gratuitous, and marred the otherwise courteous tone of his letter. We were not seeking Republican advice along that line. But I suppose mercenary politics measures the conduct of men by its own questionable standard even in the presence of the great calamity which has befallen the nation.""It will occur to thinking men that Mr. Dick was equally unfortunate in his reference to the protective policy which it was supposed the president stood for. If he had read the last public utterance delivered by the president at Buffalo before his attempted assassination he could easily have discerned a change of mind on the part of the president himself on that subject. Although veiled under the term 'reciprocity,' it is nevertheless a complete abandonment of the protective system. For reciprocity, while not free trade by operation of law, is free trade accompanied by contract stipulations between nations."

SPIRIT OF UNREST

Among Republicans Troubling Leaders of the Party.A Specimen Job of the Legislature to Deplete the State Treasury and to Enrich a Few Party Favorites.Columbus, O., Sept. 16. — The political situation on the Republican side in the state capital is rather peculiar up to date, being one of anxiety rather than happy expectation.Heretofore the Republican papers, at this season of the campaign have been wont to warn their Republican readers against "overconfidence." The voices of the leaders and the tones of the organs are not strident on that subject at this time.Their lamentations are over the fact that there is a total and incomprehensible "lack of confidence," especially among the county leaders and universal apathy among the rank and file.No; there is no "overweening" confidence in the Republican party this year. It is an "overweening" of a different character. A sort of a "honing," so to speak, to land on the solar plexus of the men who have been making golden promises for years, and redeeming them, when redeemed at all, in a compound of pewter, spelter and nickel.And "that's what's the matter with Hanna" and all the rest of them.Hon. Ira Gwynn, the sage of Hickory Grove, Logan county, dropped in to town recently, and proceeded at once to protest that the people of Logan, although largely Republican, are not in favor of the outrageous job put through the last legislature by Senator Warren G. Harding, of Marion andRepresentative Luther H. Pool, of Logan, for the benefit of their side partner, Huston, whereby tens of thousands of dollars are to be taken from the state treasury to pay for damages in consequence of the breaking of the Leviston reservoir dam, which didn't break at all, some years ago."There was no actual damage at all to the lands from the overflow," said Gwynn. "The state has no right to drain the marshes and made them valuable, and the owners themselves were satisfied with conditions, until somebody who didn't own the lands discovered a good opening for a job, and then the damages began to grow like husky mushrooms, and they are still growing with the aid of the multiplication table.""There are plenty of Republicans in Logan county who are going to register an effective protest against this enormous job, and inasmuch as the unfruct of it will be drawn from the taxpayers of the whole state, they ask the Republicans in the other eighty-seven counties to aid in the election of a legislature that will knock the life out of it without a moment's delay."Mr. Gwynn is a mild-mannered man and he abhors epithets and strong language, but it was plain to be seen by the earnestness of himself and two or three other Logan county farmers who accompanied him, that they looked upon the job as a stupendous steal, and without a shadow of justification."It is not our policy," said General Dick recently, "to devote any attention to state matters in this campaign, least of all to the question of taxation, on which the cracks are harping. The people of Ohio have taken us on trust time and again, and they will take us on trust again."The trouble of the whole matter is, however, that while the people of Ohio have been taking the Republican leaders on trust for years, their confidence has brought them no beneficial results, but, on the contrary, extravagant and inequitable distribution of taxes. It is of these things the taxpayers complain. They want reform, not "trust."Hon. William J. Frey, of Hancock, the popular chairman of the state central committee, says:"Throughout the northwestern portion of the state the people are earnest in their belief that the Democratic state ticket will win at the coming election, and that a Democratic legislature will be elected.""This is not merely the view of the Democratic voters, but of a large element in the Republican party, who seem to be impressed with the idea that their party leaders are infinitely more intent on promoting their own than the public's interests.""While these Republicans have taken an interest all along in state and national affairs, they are not merely politicians with personal axes to grind, but men of business affairs and business ideas.""They reluctantly admit that they have been forced to the conclusion that their party leaders constitute a close corporation, with which the interests of the masses cut little or no figure. They are ready for a change.
We will get a large number of votes from this class of Republicans in my part of the state, and no doubt in all parts of the state."Something like two score "farrin" speakers are to come to Ohio to talk in behalf of the Republican ticket.
They know nothing of our state affairs, or the needs of the taxpayers, and, of course, will say nothing about them.
But that will suit the Republican management. They want no talk on these subjects.It will be recalled that one of Mr.
Morgan's complaints against the Amalgamated association, and one chief reason for his refusing to recognize the organization in making labor contracts with it, was because it was not "incorporated."In this Mr. Morgan has shown his "long-headedness," if he can be judged by current events in Great Britain.
This gentleman insisted that the association could not be compelled under the law to stand by its contracts, or be held responsible for damages for non-fulfillment of the same, when damages resulted from failure to maintain its agreements.Mr. Morgan undoubtedly gathered this last argument against labor unions from the holdings of the English house of lords, "which holds that corporate privileges involve corporate responsibilities." In Great Britain, the law makes provision allowing labor associations "corporate powers" for the purpose of protecting the funds of the unions.The aristocratic house of lords, from which the autocratic trust delights in taking precedent, now insists, when confronted with the character mentioned, that it means that an association that can sue for the protection of recovery of money stolen or withheld, can also be sued for losses it may have caused, or, in other words, the law granting labor unions quasi corporate powers for the protection of its funds, carries with it full corporate obligations in the way of being sued for damages caused by labor strikes.Such interpretation of the British statutes is just to the liking of the American trusts; and nothing could be more to the convenience of Mr. Morgan just now, were the Amalgamated association an incorporated body. To follow the decision of the house of lords and tie the labor unions of this country up in the courts under damage suits, would at once give victory and the autocratic power aimed at, to the steel combine.

THE MIKADO'S SUCCESSORS

Birth of a Son to the Crown Prince Delights the Loyal Japanese.

Japan has not yet stopped rejoicing over the birth of an heir to Crown Prince Yoshihito, which happy event occurred a short time ago. The Japanese are for the most part very loyal to the reigning dynasty. This trait of their character may well be heralding, for loyalty to the same dynasty was common in Japan as far back as 600

CROWN PRINCE YOSHIHITO OF JAPAN.

B. C. In other words, the same family has been reigning in Japan for more than 2,500 years, and the newly born prince, if he succeeds his grandfather and father in regular succession, will be the one hundred and twenty-fourth mikado or emperor of his line.Japanese law allows a prince to succeed to the throne provided that he is the son of the emperor by either the empress or a secondary wife. This is to insure a regular succession from father to son. Neither the present emperor, Mutsuhito, nor his son, Yoshihito, is the son of an empress. It is added matter of rejoicing for the Japanese that the new prince was born to Princess Sadako, the regularly married wife of Yoshihito. Their marriage was celebrated on May 10, 1900.Crown Prince Yoshihito was born on Aug. 31, 1879, and was proclaimed heir to the throne just eight years later.
His wife, the future empress, is a number of years younger and is related to the prince. She is, according to Japanese accounts, a beautiful and highly educated young woman.It has long been thought that Yoshihito will not live long enough to succeed his imperial father. He has never been very strong and is thought to have a tendency toward consumption. He is short, judged by foreign standards, although of medium Japanese height.
Prince Yoshihito has been carefully watched and nursed by his father. The empress is also strongly attached to the young man, although he is not her son.
He was described a short time ago as "a bright, brave young man, very fond of military affairs." He dresses in European clothes, and his costume is that of a soldier. He walks very straight and is dignified. He is fond of beating and fishing.COMPARE THE TIMES-DEMO-

RULES

That Govern the Public Library

Which is to be Opened Next Monday.

Books are Free to Every Established Citizen of Lima, Who are Governed by the Rules and Regulations.

Next Monday morning the long expected and hoped for will happen. On that day for the first time the public is invited to enjoy the pleasure that accrues from a public library; and that the institution will grow in popular favor and eventually enlarge itself to proportions in keeping with a city of Lima's class, is not a matter that permits of dispute. It has been a long time coming, and now that the start has been made, due thanks and credit should be accorded those whose persistence have made the new luxury possible.

The trustees want it understood that the library is free to every citizen of Lima, the use of the books and the rooms on the second floor of the Black block being governed by the following excellent set of rules and regulations:

1. Library hours. The rooms of the public library are open week days, from 9 to 11:30 a. m.: from 1:30 to 5 p. m., and from 7 to 9 p. m., excepting legal holidays, and any special days the trustees may direct.

2. No person shall be allowed more than one book at a time, except that two volumes of a set may be taken.

3. Books, except those marked "seven day books," may be retained two weeks, and may be renewed for the next two weeks: After that they cannot be renewed to the same person or family until one week has elapsed.

4. A borrower's card shall be issued to each borrower without charge, which must be presented whenever books are taken, returned or renewed, and is forfeited if loaned to any one not a member of the family to whom it is issued. If such card is lost, it will be replaced on payment of five cents.

5. Works of reference and other books designated by the board cannot be taken out of the library.

6. A fine of two cents each day up to the value of the book will be imposed for retaining a book beyond the time stipulated by these rules.
Fines will also be imposed for turning down leaves, marking, or in any way injuring or defacing a book.

7. All books are free to residents of Lima, O., over 10 years of age, but they must first register their names, or if unknown to librarian, must be endorsed by some responsible person known to librarian, or if minors, by their parents or guardians.

8. Noise or loud conversation in the library is strictly prohibited.

9. No person who has drawn a book from the library shall lend it to any one not a member of the same household. Any person abusing this rule shall be liable to be suspended by the board of directors.

10. Persons under eighteen years of age shall be permitted to draw only two books per week, only one of which shall be a work of fiction.

TWO TRYING TO FLY.

ONE TRIP ACROSS THE ATLANTIC, ANOTHER IN EUROPE.

Santos Dumont has a Dirigible Balloon, and Godard Will Try to Reach Europe by Air—Novel Features of the Two Attempts.

Ballooning affairs are rather active just now, two aeronautic matters of consequence being on the tapis. One of these is the proposed trip of M. Godard across the Atlantic, and the other is the coming trial of the new balloon of Senior Santos Dumont of Paris. M.
Godard purposes sailing in his balloon from New York to France during the coming fall. He has been influenced in his choice of the time by the fact that at that season he will have the gentle west winds to waft him across the ocean.

M. Godard's balloon in which he hopes to make the first aerial transatlantic trip is called La France. It consists of one large central balloon surrounded by eight small reserve bags.
By this means the daring Frenchman hopes to avoid the consequences of any accident to his central inflated bag. Another extremely interesting feature of La France is the understructure suspended from the nine balloons. This is a sort of house with two or three stories or decks, containing living apartments for a number of people. M. Godard entertains great hopes of his accomplishing a foolhardy attempt to cross the ocean dry shod. Many others are confident that he will succeed.

Although M. Godard's plans for using his balloon are more ambitious at the present time than those of Senior Santos Dumont, the vehicle of the latter is by far more original and striking in plan. Senior Santos Dumont's balloon is not a mere inflated bag, subject to the caprices of air currents. He confidently claims that he has solved the problem of dirigibility—in other words, that he has invented a balloon that can be steered either with or against the wind. If Senior Santos Dumont really accomplishes all that he promises, he

SENIOR SANTOS DUMONT.

has solved the greatest problem of aerial flight and has done away with the difficulty that has confronted generations of inventors.

The Senior Santos Dumont balloon may be described briefly as a cigar shaped inflated bag, suspended from which is an apparatus to make it fly. It is in effect a combination of the familiar balloon and the aeroplane, or winged flying machine. It is impossible until Senior Santos Dumont himself gives the word to exactly describe his flying machine.
His creation at Nice, France, is being attended with the greatest of secrecy.
About the middle of July the Santos Dumont balloon will be ready for the world's inspection. Some of its general features are known, however, from the previous attempts of the aeronaut.

The bag of the balloon consists of a light but strong framework, probably of aluminum, covered with the strongest of silk. Suspended from it is the framework, in the center of which will sit the navigator on a bicycle saddle.
The motive power will be furnished by a motor as well as by the pedals. Nothing very definite is known in regard to the motor. According to various accounts, it will be an electrical, a gasoline or a petroleum engine. At any rate, sufficient power will be generated by a light, strong and exceedingly powerful motor to move the balloon along after it has ascended by reason of the lifting power of the gas.

Steering the Santos Dumont balloon presents its most original feature. The inventor is to have a propeller wheel in front of the engine instead of behind, as it is usually placed. It will be attached to a long rod made of bamboo or other light material and will enable the sanguine aeronaut to send his balloon forward, backward, sideways, up, down or in any desired direction.
Senior Santos Dumont has already made some successful attempts with previous flying machines built on similar lines.

Senior Santos Dumont is a young Brazilian engineer, about 27 years old.
He has been greatly interested in aronautics for a number of years and has the means wherewith to indulge in expensive researches. His motives are most praiseworthy, for he is ambitious of being the first builder of a dirigible balloon. He has built a number of flying machines, none of which, however, has exactly answered his purpose. He seems to have a very good chance of success with his latest venture.

THOUSANDS IN TEARS.

Sorrowful Scene on a New York Recreation Pier.

There was an affecting scene on the east side of New York the other night when Baynes' Sixty-ninth Regiment band played the dead president's favorite hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," on the recreation pier at the foot of East Twenty-fourth street, says the New York Herald. Fully 10,000 men, women and children had assembled on the pier to enjoy the concert, and all was merry and gay until the band commenced to play the now sorrowful hymn.

As the strains of the first bar of "Nearer, My God, to Thee" wafted across the East river every man of the thousands bowed his head. The yachts of the millionaire members of the New York Yacht club riding at anchor off the recreation pier dipped their colors, and a profound silence prevailed, interrupted only by men and women sobbing. The scene was one of the like of which was never witnessed on the east side before. Passengers on the Twenty-third street and Hunter's Point ferries bowed their heads as they listened to the strains of the music echoing over the river.

Hundreds of people, overcome with emotion, broke down and wept, and many, too affected by the sad scene, left the pier. A stylishly dressed woman accosted the bandmaster and asked him to repeat the hymn, and then slowly and softly the music again filled the air. This time everybody on the pier arose and sang the hymn—the one that the dead president loved so well—in a low tone, that was almost a chant. "Lead, kindly Light," followed, and the thousands, still standing with uncovered heads, voices choked and husky, sang it in a sad tone. It was the first time that such a pathetic, sorrowful scene was ever enacted on the pier. As a fitting tribute to the dead president "The Hymn of Praise" was played, and in this the crowds joined together and sang in unison.

"The Star Spangled Banner" was the last selection played.

SCHLEY COURTROOM.

Difficultly Experienced in Hearing the Proceedings.

The quarters provided for the Schley court of inquiry proved a disappointment on account of their acoustic properties, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Evening Post. It was practically impossible to hear any one twenty-five feet away except Isidor Bayner, one of Schley's attorneys, and Judge Advocate Lemly, both of whom were easily heard throughout the hall. But the reservation assigned to the spectators, which is about the middle third of the building, is so far away that during the important parts of the hearing those present stood up to listen, which of course meant that only a limited number could be accommodated. The back third of the floor, shut off by a board partition, is occupied by the telegraph companies. The front third of the hall contains the reservation for the court and the space on three sides of it assigned to the newspaper correspondents. The whole room is large and airy, but exceedingly plain. The steel girders which support the roof are in open view above, while the brick walls have been painted white. The noise of the navy yard does not greatly disturb proceedings, and were the room not so far from the telegraphic and other centers of the city it would be a good place of meeting except for the spectators.

THE ROOSEVELT FAMILY

Personality of New Mistress of the White House.

CULTURED AND FOND OF HOME LIFE

Chief Executive's Wife is an Omnivorous Reader and Constant Student. Her Tastes in Dress are Simple. She is Deeply Religious—Facts About the Children.

Tragedies have confronted Theodore Roosevelt, the new president, before now, and no one who saw will ever forget his quiet, almost superhuman, self control the day when his mother and his wife, who was Miss Alice Lee of Boston, were both laid to rest, says the New York Herald. The dearly beloved mother and wife of Theodore Roosevelt died in the same house within a few hours, and his self control was marvellous, inspiring all with the deepest respect and admiration.

The present Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, who before her marriage was Edith Carew of New York, is a remarkable woman and one of rare personality. She is a woman of the highest principle and of a far more than ordinary mental caliber. From her earliest childhood she has been an omnivorous reader and a constant student. She has always shrank from anything like notoriety, and the necessary publicity that her husband's position has forced upon her has been, so far as lay in her power, made less conspicuous.

She is a New Yorker by birth, was educated at one of the fashionable schools and has spent several years traveling abroad. She is an accomplished linguist, and her musical knowledge is far above the ordinary. Ever since her marriage she has devoted herself, heart and soul, to her husband's career and at the same time has been a devoted mother. She has not, in one sense of the word, gone in for society at all, although by her birth as well as her marriage she has always had a position which involves certain social duties. Her circle of acquaintances has been from childhood the same as her husband's, and they have among their friends the leading people of the country.

Mrs. Roosevelt is rather petite, has brown hair and brown eyes, a clear skin with some color when she is excited, but her chief beauty is her mouth, which is marvellously expressive.

She dresses simply, especially in the street; wears no jewels, excepting with evening dress, which is always extremely handsome. She has not varied for years the style of her hairdressing. The hair is parted, smoothed simply back from the forehead and curled at the back of the head, with some few natural ringlets around the temples, but there is no attempt made to follow each more of fashion. Mrs. Roosevelt has understood her own style and dresses accordingly.

Not everybody knows that she and her husband were child sweethearts. As they grew older their lives were rather separated. After the death of his first wife Mr. Roosevelt traveled abroad. There he again met Miss Edith Carew, and very soon the news came to his friends of his marriage, which has been an ideally happy one. From the time they were little children Mrs. Roosevelt's belief in Mr. Roosevelt's ability has never wavered.

Mrs. Roosevelt does not go in for any of the athletic sports of the day, but she is a good horsewoman and has taken up riding again within the last two or three years. She is an expert needlewoman, writes cleverly, and there is somewhere extant a book of verse which she has published for private circulation. She is a member of several luncheon clubs, but she has never taken part in fashionable entertainments, and her name appears very rarely on the list of patronesses for large festivities.

She possesses that rare talent, which made Mrs. Cleveland so popular, of remembering the faces of people she meets once or twice and also being able to remember all about them. She is the born companion as well as the wise and tender mother of her stepdaughter and her own children, who are much younger than Miss Alice Roosevelt. She has a wide knowledge of politics, both foreign and American. She is a frail looking woman, but has much more strength than she apparently possesses. She is deeply religious.

Miss Alice Roosevelt, Theodore Roosevelt's eldest child, will be eighteen years old next March, and it had been planned that she should make her debut this winter in Washington society. While Miss Roosevelt has not gone out in the formal acceptance of the term, she has of necessity seen a great deal of society, young as she is. She is a very charming young girl, with an unusually pleasant manner and with an intense interest in life. She is very fond of outdoor sports, is a good horsewoman and thinks nothing of walking from five to seven miles a day. She is a fine tennis player. She lives out of doors as much as possible and is a good specimen of a wholesome, healthy, happy American girl.

Her chief beauty is her light, fair hair, of which she has great quantities. She has blue eyes and a fair skin, is above medium height and has a very slight figure, although rather athletic in build. She has a rather deep voice and a very jolly laugh. She is devoted to her home, to her father, stepmother and to her half sister and brothers. She has been educated with governesses. She is fond of reading.

There is another Miss Roosevelt, who will not be introduced to society for some years, but who is a very pretty child of about ten years of age. She resembles her mother very closely, although, she, too, has blue eyes and fair hair, like her sister Alice. She is being educated at home.

The other children are Theodore, Jr., aged fourteen; Kermit, aged twelve, and Quentin, aged four.

The Roosevelt love of home is a marked characteristic of the family not confined at all to this generation. For the Roosevelt clanliness was at one time a byword, and to this day the immediate members of the Roosevelt family apparently find more pleasure in each other's society than in that of any of their friends. Mr. Roosevelt certainly takes intense pleasure in being with his children, as they do in being with him. Home for the Roosevelts is the "dearest spot on earth."

The Roosevelt home near Oyster Bay, N. Y., is a many gabled house on Sagamore hill, a knoll that overlooks the bay, and the wooded glen to the west known as West Hollow. To reach it you drive over a macadamized road along the shores of the bay and then up the hill through a grove of chestnut, oak and dogwood. It is three stories high, the first of red brick, above which the wide Dutch shingles give it the air of an early colonial mansion. The most striking features are the wide verandas, the squat chimneys and the great number of modern windows.

SOUTH AMERICAN AFFAIRS.

Boonies Says Our Sister Republics Have to Learn Responsibility.

Francis B. Loonis, minister to Portugal and former minister to Venezuela, recently lectured before the Naval War college class at Newport, R. I., taking as his text "South American Relations." He said in substance:

"It cannot be doubted by those familiar with conditions in certain Latin American countries in the tropical part of South and Central America that some of the most embarrassing questions which the United States will have to meet in the future will arise from its relations with those republics. These questions, of a difficult and delicate nature, will arise through no fault of the government of the United States."

"The world has as yet made no demand upon the productive capacity of South and Central America. This lost portion of the western hemisphere has been reserved for the future. But in the strenuous rivalry for vaster commercial relations every available part of the earth's surface will be scanned, and one way or another every hand will have to respond to the world's demand."

"If our commercial sway is to be widened, the building of an isthmus canal is the first essential step in that direction, and it logically follows that control of the canal must be with us. The building of an isthmus canal will be of enormous benefit to the Latin American republics bordering the Caribbean sea."

"It seems to me, however, that one of the plain duties which the immediate future will enforce upon the government of the United States will be that of insisting upon a higher degree of responsibility on the part of some of the republics in tropical Latin America. This will not be a pleasant duty, but it is one that will have to be performed, and, on the whole, perhaps the sooner it is done the better will it be for the world in general."

FASHION TIPS FROM PARIS.

Some Advance Hints About French Styles For the Early Winter.

Here is a brief resume of what will be most worn in the capital of fashion this winter, says the October Ladies' Home Journal: The winter coats will be long and have pockets on both sides. Rough cloths will be much worn, the most popular color being tobacco brown. All garments will fit more loosely than at present, with a tendency to fullness. A great many fancy buttons and little ornaments will be used on dresses. Sleeves will be somewhat plainer and almost all the necks trimmed in some way or other. Dressy waists will have bolero fronts, and black velvet belts will be much in vogue.

All belts are to be worn low in front, the idea being to make the waist as long as possible. On the autumn hats velvet is combined with tulle and gauzes and delicate laces. The new hats are all flat and are worn over the forehead. Havana brown with green, dark green with black and reseda green with black, Havana and gray, green with gray and silver, black with gold and Havana brown with peacock shades are some of the new colors and combinations.

First Postmistress in Cuba.

The first woman postmaster in the island of Cuba is Miss Ysabel Marin de los Rios, who has the office at Gibra, says the Springfield Republican. Miss Rios is twenty-three years old and the eldest in a family of thirteen children. Her father was the late Judge de los Rios and was a postmaster at the time of his death. Miss Rios' appointment met with approval from every one. She receives a salary of $1,200.

Hand Painted Hats Are the Thing.

"One of the newest specialties in Paris this season is the hand painted hat," says Katharine de Forest in the October Ladies' Home Journal. "The other day I saw an exquisite creation of black velvet with the brim quilled in such a way that the velvet apparently formed great rose petals, on each of which was a painted golden feather."

Archaeologists to Meet in Greece.

Greece intends to hold a congress of archaeologists in April, 1902. Invitations will be sent out by the minister of public instruction and by the directors of the French and German schools. Meetings will be held at Athens, Olympia, Delphi and other points of interest.

BICENTENNIAL OF YALE.

Railroad Company's Great Preparations For the Celebration.

WILL PROVIDE FOR 25,000 PEOPLE.

Special Tracks Being Laid With Room For Three Hundred Sleeping and Dining Cars—Many Special Cars Also Expected—Arrangements For Guests Who Arrive by Water.

Accommodations for 25,000 people have been provided by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad for the guests of bicentennial week at Yale, says a dispatch to the Philadelphia Public Ledger from New Haven. Special tracks are being built near the general office building of the road on Meadow street, New Haven, with room for 300 sleeping and dining cars. The railroad managers plan to run upon these tracks the cars filled with guests as they arrive for the celebration and to keep them there until the exercises close. The guests will eat and sleep in the cars which will take them there. Many of the cars will be private property, sent to New Haven for the occasion by their owners, many of whom are Yale men who have since become wealthy. Others will be chartered by private parties who go to New Haven for the bicentennial. Special cars will come from as far south as New Orleans and as far west as San Francisco. On the freight yards at Cedar Hill, Long wharf and at the Derby road freight depot special tracks will be set aside for the use of the special cars which come for the celebration. An official of the company said that a total of more than 500 special cars would be stalled at New Haven during the bicentennial.

The vacant rooms in the old depot and the rooms which are not now used in the general office building of the consolidated road will be utilized as temporary lodging quarters, with cots spread for the occasion. The large office of Major Isaac Bromley will be used as a bureau of information. The headquarters for the press who are assigned for service in connection with the railroad work of the bicentennial will be in the general office building. This arrangement will provide sleeping and eating accommodations for more than 8,000 people who will come on the special cars.

The arrangements for accommodating bicentennial guests while in New Haven by water are still more extensive, if not so elaborate. The road managers say that they can handle 17,000 people through their marine department. The road operates the Priscilla, Puritan, Plymouth, Connecticut, City of Lowell, City of Worcester, Maine, New Hampshire, Chester W. Chapin, Richard Peck, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Providence, City of Lawrence and C. H. Northam. The first three named have 550 staterooms each. The rest have between 250 and 450 staterooms each.

As many of these boats as are needed for the use of the bicentennial guests will be withdrawn from service during bicentennial week. The boats will be anchored in Long Island sound every night, leaving the New Haven dock with its cargo of bicentennial guests after the exercises for that night are over. Meals will of course be served on board.

Before the bicentennial fifteen new locomotives are expected. Ten have been already received. Arrangements have been completed with the New York Central and the Harlem Road to supply additional motive power if any is needed. The road has just secured forty-seven new passenger coaches, and fifty more are due to be delivered before Oct. 10. These have been rushed to completion in order that they might be available for the Yale bicentennial. In fact, the railroad managers have decided to stop all traffic on one of their lines during bicentennial week. They have taken the entire stock of locomotives and cars of the Meriden and Cromwell line and will add them to their stock needed in carrying the guests over their main lines.

The Connecticut Western road is making gigantic efforts to finish before the bicentennial the loop at East Granby and thereby to complete its famous Tarifville extension. This, they think, will draw considerable of the traffic away from the Consolidated line, especially the through passengers from the west who come by the Poughkeepsie bridge route.

Cleaning Up Coronation Coaches.

In view of the coronation in England next year, all the state coaches are being overhauled and put into repair, as many of them were in sadly dilapidated condition through want of use, says The Lady's Magazine. Lord Salisbury and the Duke of Portland both possess beautiful state coaches, and so do the Duke of Norfolk, the Duke of Devonshire, the Duke of Marlborough, and the Duke of Buccleugh, while Lord Londonderry's and Lord Cadogan's are perhaps the best turned out. The various embassies also have splendid coaches.

H. O. ARMOUR'S GENEROSITY.

Thomas A. McIntyre Tells of Dead Merchant's Fine Traits.

Members of the Produce Exchange in New York had many kind words the other day for Herman Ossian Armour, who died at Saratoga. "He was one of the old fashioned merchant princes of whom we have none left here," said a banker to a reporter of the New York Tribune. "One of Mr. Armour's most pronounced characteristics was his tremendous energy. He never dropped a plan of any kind when once he had decided that it was worth pushing through to completion. Throughout his life he was a hard worker, although he did not spend so much time at his business as his brother Philip. 'He placed the utmost confidence upon his judgment of McIntyre & Marshall, in which firm Mr. Armour was a special partner, and Mr. McIntyre added:

"He seemed to know by intuition whether a man could be trusted. When Mr. Armour believed in any one, he trusted that person implicitly. He was very liberal in this respect, and his life was a happy one because he was not constantly on the lookout for deceit and underhand methods. He was sympathetic, cordial and whole souled. I never knew a man who loved his friends so faithfully. He was one of our old time merchants and can be compared only to such men as David Davis, John Fiske and Jesse Hoyt, with whom he was intimate. His discernment was unusually keen, and rarely did his judgment err. He was what we call a 'lifter' rather than a 'wrecker.' I always admired Mr. Armour for the quiet, unostentatious way in which he gave to charity. Whenever a member of the exchange was in difficulty Mr. Armour did more than his share to help him regain his feet. Here is a single instance: Twenty-five years ago a man who handled some of the lightest business of the Erie railroad found himself in debt to the amount of $50,000 because of the sudden disappearance of his associate. Calling on the partner, who bravely went to work to reorganize the business, Mr. Armour said:

"Why don't you pay your debts?"

"I can't do it now. I shall when I can," was the reply.

"But why can't you?" insisted Mr. Armour in his impulsive way.

"Because I am practically without a cent."

"Well, if you don't settle with your creditors at once I shall," Mr. Armour said.

"The man objected strongly because of his pride, but not many hours after his interview with Mr. Armour he found that his debts had been paid. That man died thirteen years ago worth half a million dollars. Mr. Armour knew that the man had the elements of success in him. I know of many other generous things which this whole souled man did, but I am not sure that it would be right to speak of them now. I am acquainted with perhaps 25,000 men, and not one of them is as great a man as Mr. Armour was. He was one of a million."

SMOKELESS GUNS LOCATED.

English Soldiers to Be Taught Lesson Learned From Boers.

The English war office's new scheme for the training of Tommy Atkins in maneuvers embraces many novelties which will in due course see the light of practical demonstration, says the London Express. Among these novelties are more interesting or fraught with greater possibilities than the device for training soldiers to locate guns firing smokeless powder.

Arrangements are being made to carry out experiments in this direction at Aldershot, and the sappers have already constructed an ingenious battle field upon Ash ranges which will make field firing very realistic. In the trial to come an infantry force will approach the ranges and will immediately be fired upon by distant guns. Endeavor will be made to locate the fieldpieces and the infantry will move forward to cover. As they advance surprise targets representing cavalry and mounted infantry will spring up on bank and front, an armored train will run out, and all the features of a modern battle field will be represented against the advancing force. This method will call for great initiative from commanders, and the targets will be so made that good shooting will be recorded by the targets being knocked over.

As an inducement to make infantry take cover a new device has been adopted. Artillerymen are to accompany the advancing columns, and when a distant gun fires its dummy shell they will produce a corresponding explosion among the attackers by means of a small mortar, thus teaching the lesson of cover and caution as no other means short of live shells could do.

Played For Royal Tots.

The little Princess Louise, the Kaiser's youngest child, was entertaining a party of young friends in the Schloss when the sounds of a barrel organ were heard from the distant street. She went to her mother and drew her attention to the music. The empress sent a lucky for the organ man, had him come into the room among the child princesses and princesses and started him to work, writes the Berlin correspondent of the New York World. He played his dances, and the company danced to their hearts' content. The Kaiserin had her maids of honor down, and they all romped about like ordinary folk.

Washington as a Model.

Australia's federal government is now planning a capital city, and it is no surprise to learn, says the New York Tribune, that the projectors of the new seat of federal government have turned for suggestions not to London, but to Washington.

TO IDENTIFY CRIMINALS.

Plans For Central Bureau of Washington to Be Used Upon Congress.

The movement which aims to secure the establishment of a bureau of criminal information at Washington in connection with the department of justice and which has been conducted under the auspices of the committee appointed at the meeting of the National Prison association in Hartford, Conn., two years ago, will be renewed with the convening of the new congress, says the New York Post. It is believed that the assassination of President McKinley has emphasized the need of the proposed bureau.

The committee consists of Albert Garvin, warden of the Connecticut state prison; Major R. W. McLaughlin, warden of the United States penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, and Captain Edward S. Wright, warden of the Western penitentiary of Pennsylvania. A bill providing for the creation of a bureau of criminal information at Washington was formulated, and it was introduced into congress last year. It was endorsed by the country and was approved by the department of justice, practically no opposition developed, but the measure failed in the press of urgent business because no opportunity to call it up for action presented itself. The bill will be introduced again in the next congress.

Warden Garvin, in speaking of the proposition, said: "The proposed central bureau, conducted under federal supervision, would be an effective agency for the registration and identification of criminals, and the large body of data which it would accumulate would be at the disposal of state and local authorities. The crusade against criminals is greatly handicapped and hampered by the lack of a central bureau at which needed information can be had for the asking. The bureau would be a great help to national, state and local officials in checking crime and in keeping criminals under effective supervision."

MISSING BUTTON REPLACED.

Abner McKinley Put a Loyal Legion Taken on His Brother's Death.

An impressive and pathetic incident occurred while the body of the late president was lying in the Millburn house, says a Buffalo dispatch to the Philadelphia Press. Abner McKinley went up to look in on the face of his brother. The form in the coffin was dressed in the conventional frock coat, but as Abner McKinley looked down on it he discovered that the button of the Loyal Legion was not there. Always through the years since the organization was formed the president had worn it.

Silently and quickly an attendant was sent to the room where the body had been prepared for burial, and there was found the coat that he had worn on the day he was shot. In the lapel was the button, which was removed and tenderly placed in its accustomed place on the breast of the great man who had worn it so proudly in his life.

"I had a running sore on my leg for seven years," writes Mrs. Forest of Chippewa Falls, Wis., "and spent hundreds of dollars in trying to get it healed. Two boxes of Banner Salve entirely cured it." Beware of substitutes.

ACTION BY MASONS.

Columbus Lodge Starts Worldwide Movement Against Anarchy.

The Masons of Columbus, O., have taken the initiative in a worldwide movement for the suppression of anarchy, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Lincoln Goodale lodge has adopted resolutions denouncing the president's assailant and the anarchists who prompted the assassination and calling upon the Masonic fraternity throughout the world to hunt down the followers of the red flag and banish them from all civilized countries.

This is an extremely unusual action upon the part of the Masons, whose organization is counted the most conservative and self contained in existence. It is very rare that any public question or calamity calls forth official expression. The resolution, copies of which will be distributed broadcast, is as follows:

"Resolved, That we appeal to our Masonic brothers in all quarters of the globe to constitute themselves as individual watchmen and hunters to detect and aid the guardians of law in arresting, punishing and banishing from their countries every vestige of anarchy. And for this purpose we look to the Grand Master of the universe for help and guidance."

FLAGLER'S NEW HOME.

Description of the Florida Millionaire's Palace, Whitehall.

The work of the greatest magnitude now on the east coast is undoubtedly Whitehall, the home of Mr. H. M. Flagler, says the Palm Beach (Fla.) News. This palace, for this is what it will be in every sense of the word, was planned in the winter of 1890, and about fourteen months ago the first steps were taken toward its construction. Since the beginning not a day has been lost by the force in charge of the work, and today the massive walls have reached their height, and the tiled roof is being placed in position. All the interior finishing is yet to be done, and then comes the furnishing, but all this will be done and the mansion ready for the owner's occupation in December.

Before Whitehall is completed it is estimated that at least a half million dollars will have been expended on the structure and grounds surrounding it. Whitehall stands about 400 feet southwest from the Hotel Royal Poinciana, on the shore of Lake Worth. It is a solid brick and stone creation of purely Spanish architectural design. It fronts east 170 feet, with a depth of 154 feet. Large, airy, eighteen foot verandas will surround the building on all sides except the west, while a 100 foot portico will stretch over the east veranda and will be supported by massive columns thirty-two feet in height and four in diameter constructed of solid masonry.

Have you a sense of fullness in the region of your stomach after eating? If so you will be benefited by using Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They also cure belching and sour stomach. They regulate the bowels too. Price, 25 cents. Sold by Wm. Melville, old post office.

A Self Locating Fog Horn.

A fog signal which is self locating was recently tested at Putnam Island by the United States light house board. It consists, according to The Engineering News, of a siren driven by a gas engine and provided with eight megaphones pointing to the points of the compass. Specific signals are automatically given through each megaphone. For instance, if there is one long blast the signal is north of the observer, one long and one short blast indicate that the signal is directly east, etc. It has been found that when a vessel is within half a mile of the apparatus the signal pointing toward it can be heard very plainly, while the others are scarcely audible. At distances of from two to ten miles it is impossible to hear any signals except those from the megaphone pointed directly at the observer. A modification of the apparatus has been perfected for use on board ship.

Neuralgia.

The Prayer of a Nerve for More Blood.

Neuralgia may attack any part of the body but most frequently occurs where the nerves are most abundant.

In the head.
In the face.
Sometimes the nerve seems to twist, twinging rheumatic pains of the extremities.

Sharp and intense at times.
In the intervals dull and heavy.

Neuralgia is the result of impoverished blood, caused by impairment of the nerves—a lack of nerve force.

It is a disease of the nerve centers, and the pains accompanying it are a prelude for better nourishment. They are the danger signals which warn you against a total collapse of the nervous system.

Liniments and all external applications can only give temporary relief. Permanent cure can only come until the nerve centers are thoroughly revitalized by Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. The beneficial effects of this great nerve restorative are felt thrillingly through the nerve fibers as week by week and month by month the nerve force of the body is restored.

Women afflicted with diseases peculiar to their sex are frequently great sufferers from neuralgia. Dr. Chase's Nerve Pills positively cure both these disorders by filling the nervous system with new vigor and life. 50 cents a box at all dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. The genuine has portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase on each package.

Mrs. J. H. Warrick, of No. 280 Philadelphia St., Indiana, Pa., says: "I can recommend Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills to anyone who suffers as I did with nervous sick headache—neuralgia of the head and a weakened stomach digestion. They stopped the headache, the neuralgia disappeared and with it the stomach trouble."

THE QUEEN OF ANARCHY

Traits of Emma Goldman, Rabid Teacher of Revolution.

CALLED THE "LITTLE FIREBRAND"

By This Title She Is Well Known on the East Side of New York—Considered the Most Reckless of All Incendiary Speechmakers in Anarchistic Ranks.

Emma Goldman, the queen of anarchy, who has just been arrested, first came into prominence in New York during the bread riots of the spring and summer of 1893 growing out of the cloakmakers' strike, says the New York World. Since then she has been the most reckless of all the incendiary speechmakers in the ranks of the anarchists in the United States. The character of the woman and her doctrines is best shown by her speeches. In these she has repeatedly said:

"I do not believe in God."

"When I die, I would rather go to hell than to heaven. All tyrants go to heaven."

"I am against all laws."

"The marriage relation is a sham."

When the anarchist Michael Angelo Goldi assassinated Prime Minister Canovas of Spain, New York anarchists held a meeting in Chatham Hall, Aug. 16, 1890, to applaud the murder, and Emma Goldman was the chief speaker. In part she said:

"President McKinley and Mark Hanna are shedding crocodile tears over the killing of Canovas del Castillo. In their own hearts they are saying, 'Perhaps I shall be the next.'"

Emma Goldman spent ten months in the penitentiary on Blackwell's Island for a speech she made in Union square on Aug. 21, 1893, during the bread riots. She was convicted of inciting to riot.

It was her lover, Henry Berkman, who shot Henry C. Frick of the Carnegie mills. After her fashion of marriage she had been his wife and public ally gloried in Berkman's act, which she inspired. The woman's strange power has made her the high priestess of the most rabid and fanatical of the anarchists.

On the east side she is known as the "Little Firebrand." Her views are extreme and revolutionary even for the average run of anarchists. Beside her Herr Most is almost conservative. Between Emma Goldman and Most there has been a long feud. It is said that at one time they were married. She attempted to cow him at an anarchist meeting on the east side upon one occasion.

Emma Goldman is thirty-three years old, short, pudgy of figure, hand featured and trowsy in appearance. Her voice is shrill and unpleasant. Her hair is light brown and her eyes bluish gray. Her chin shows determination.

She is a remarkably fluent talker and never fails to excite her anarchist hearers to a high pitch. She speaks Russian, German, English and French and writes Spanish and Italian. She was born in Russia, but was educated in Germany. She was married when she was seventeen, and according to report has had several husbands since. She married a tailor in New York several years ago, but quit him. She is said to have lived with Charles Timmerman, a New York anarchist, who was sent to prison for six months for inciting riot.

When she is in New York, the Goldman woman makes her home on the east side. She spends much of her time in back rooms of saloons where anarchists gather. A crowd of admirers constantly surrounds her. She passes women and her life has been passed mostly among L. C. Her features are almost masculine. She formerly worked in a sweatshop and is said to have been a trained nurse. Of late her time has been principally spent in Cleveland, St. Louis and Chicago, at all of which places are groups of anarchists. Her parents live at Rochester. They are not anarchists, but sympathize with her work.

How McKinley Won a Horse Race.

It is difficult to imagine that the dignified president of the United States, William McKinley, ever rode a race horse, but one who saw him do it tells this story, says the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post:

"I have known William McKinley since he was a youngster, and he won a horse race for me at Youngstown, O., when he was a mere strip of a lad of fourteen. At that time I was dealing in fast horses, and I had a promising little runner entered at the Youngstown fair. I offered young McKinley $1 to ride my horse and promised to give him $5 more if he could ride him to win."

"The boy was willing enough, but before he would consent he went to secure his father's permission. His father said the boy could do as he pleased, and he decided to try it. Well, the long and short of it was that McKinley won the race, and his luck seems to have stayed with him, for so far as I can see, he has won every race he ever entered."

New Cure For Diseases.

The new vibration theory for disease is based on the vibration theory that prevails in the domain of light, sound and heat, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. It is claimed that everything and everybody has a regular rate of vibration, measured by wave lengths. These, when properly maintained, keep the subject in a state of health. When they fall below the normal, disease supervenes, and the natural equilibrium must be restored by a good shaking. Machines have been built to produce this effect according to the symptoms of the case.

AN EMINENT SURGEON.

Career of Dr. McBurney, Called in Consultation on the President.

Dr. Charles McBurney, the well known surgeon of New York, who was called to the bedside of President McKinley the other day to advise with the physicians in attendance there, is said to have had as wide a hospital experience in dealing with accident cases as any surgeon now in New York city. He was for thirteen years the chief consulting surgeon at Roosevelt hospital, and it was through him that the private pavilion in West Fifty-ninth street, directly opposite the College of Physicians and Surgeons, known as the William J. Syme Operating pavilion, was erected in 1892.

While consulting surgeon of Roosevelt hospital Dr. McBurney had personal charge of thousands of accident cases, says the New York Tribune. Dr. McBurney resigned his place at Roosevelt hospital in March of last year to devote himself to a large private practice.

Dr. McBurney is also well known as a teacher and expander of surgery. For twenty years he was connected with the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and for three years he was professor of surgery in that institution. He severed his official connection with the college in 1892.

Dr. McBurney was born in Roxbury, Mass., Feb. 17, 1845. He received his elementary education in private schools in Boston and entered Harvard with the class of 1866. He had decided upon his profession in life, and he selected his studies with a view to his chosen calling. He received his degree of A. B. from Harvard in 1866 and that of A. M. in 1869.

Having come to New York to obtain an education in surgery and medicine, he entered the medical department of Columbia college. He was graduated in 1870 and two years later was made an assistant demonstrator of anatomy. He held this place until 1871, and in 1875 he was made chief demonstrator of anatomy. From 1880 to 1889 he was an instructor in operative surgery. In 1889 he was also made an assistant professor of surgery, and a year afterward he became professor of surgery, which chair he held until 1892.

He first became connected with hospital work in 1882, when he became the visiting surgeon at Bellevue hospital. In 1888 he was made visiting surgeon at Roosevelt hospital. Dr. McBurney is still consulting surgeon in several hospitals, including St. Luke's, the Presbyterian, the New York Orthopedic and the Hospital For the Ruptured and Crippled.

MCKINLEY AND GARFIELD.

Dr. Charles McBurney Explains How Their Cases Differ.

The attention of Dr. Charles McBurney of New York, the eminent consulting physician in attendance upon President McKinley at Buffalo, was recently called to the fact that the bullet in the Garfield case was favorable almost to the end, or for more than two months. He was asked if the favorable bullet in as to Mr. McKinley's condition could be compared to them. He was also asked to explain for the New York World if it were possible that the Garfield mistakes could be repeated now. He said:

"The difference in the statement between President McKinley's wound and President Garfield's wound represents the advance in surgery in the last twenty years. Now the surgeons are able to locate the bullet within a very small area. It is certainly lodged in the muscles of the back and nowhere near the pancreas or gall bladder. The location of the bullet in President Garfield's body could not be determined. In those days was not necessarily regarded as a dangerous symptom. It is now. No pus has been found in Mr. McKinley's wound. There was in Mr. Garfield's."

"Mr. Garfield's wound was a most unfortunate one. Mr. McKinley's wound was a very fortunate one. Mr. Garfield was shot through the back, and the bullet lodged where no one could get at it. Mr. McKinley was wounded from the front, and an operation could easily be performed. The spinal column interfered with an operation in Mr. Garfield's case."

HUSH THAT DEATH INSPIRES

Made More Solemn by the Funeral Dirge and the Doleful Tones of the Processional.

The City's Grief for the Dead Martyr.

Closed Doors Shrouded in Deepest Mourning and the Cessation of Business Life was a Mark of Respect for the Stricken President—Procession of Representative Bodies Marched to the Churches.

The American people may always be counted on to do the right thing in an emergency which involves a fine sentiment. Out of respect to the memory of the dead President of the United States the throbbing life of our great country was hushed at the moment which marked the culmination of the assassin's fiendish deed, and as the body of McKinley was lowered into the grave, Columbus' tears flowed for a people whose grief ignored creed and politics.

It was fitting that on such a sad occasion all differences should be forgotten and the people of city and state without regard to political or religious convictions, should unite to do reverence to a great character, to deplore his death, and to condemn the foul crime which robbed the world of a citizen renowned for statesmanship and for his public and private virtues. Everywhere in Lima today there were indications attesting sorrow for the death of the nation's chief and a reverence and honor for his stricken widow. With appropriate ceremonies and becoming grief the city mourned with the world under the crushing weight of a great national bereavement.

A Double Sorrow.
Not entirely forgotten in the panegyric which accompanied the laying to final rest of the martyred president, is the fact that this date, September 19, is doubly memorable in the nation's history. Twenty years ago today, after a longer but equally unsuccessful battle with death, President Garfield died; and coupled in prayer and eulogy throughout the land today were the names of Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley—Martyrs to the cause of freedom and personal liberty.

Hush of the City.
There is scarcely a business house in the city that does not display the insignia of mourning and the avenues of draped fronts and windows, with everywhere the crape-hung lithographs of the dead president, are the sad but forceful reminders of the calamity which has been visited upon a loyal people. Following out the previously announced plans every establishment in the city closed its doors at noon, while the banks and court house did not open for business during the entire day.

The same hush is to be found around the railroads, where only such work as absolutely necessary was performed. The freight houses were closed, local trains annulled and but few men are at their places in the shops, all being of one accord in their desire to pay their last respects to the honored dead.

In Solemn Procession.
At one o'clock this afternoon, both sides of Main street, from the public square to North street were lined with people, and the crowd increased in numbers as the time set for the procession to move arrived.

Shortly before two o'clock, Dana's band struck up the mournful funeral dirge and the long line moved slowly down south Main street in the following order:

ON FOOT.
Marshal Dr. Wm. M. Melville.
Dana's band.
Marshal Kent Hughes.
Police department.
Colors, carried by Dr. E. J. Barr.
Maccabees.
South side band.
Board of Education.
Marshal C. L. Rogers.
School teachers, 55.
Marshal Fred Holland.
Mart Armstrong Post G. A. R., 113.
Marshal F. C. McCoy.

IN CARRIAGES.
Water Works Trustees.
City Council.
County officials.
Mayor McComb and ex-Mayor Prophet.

The parade turned west on Market street and drew up on the square between Elizabeth and West streets, in front of Trinity M. E. church and Market street Presbyterian church, where services were held. Both places of worship were soon filled to overflowing. The committees on decoration had done their work well and the altars, while simply draped, gave the added touch to the solemn character of the services.

The processional sobbed from the deep toned organs until all were seated and then the favorite hymn of the deceased president, "Nearer My God to Thee," was sung with perhaps more feeling and pathos than ever before. The program of services had been arranged for both churches exactly alike, both as to the music and religious exercises, the following ministers and public speakers taking part:

With the close of the day the nation of heavy hearts will again unfold itself to personal duties and cares, but the grief of the past few days will leave its touch of sadness. Every thought in the past twenty-four hours has been of the stricken chief magistrate, and scarcely a reference has been made to the self-confessed anarchist who committed the frightful deed. The public ear will now turn expectantly to Buffalo where the doomed man lies entombed awaiting without hope, the hour of his doom. That it will not be long delayed is evident from the promptness of the courts in preparing for his trial, but while the nation cries out for revenge, and will not be satisfied with anything less than the blood of the assassin, the forfeiting of this one life will not stamp out the hideous sect from which he sprang.

LINEMAN

Narrowly Escaped Electro-cution Last Evening.

Was Repairing a Line on West Market Street and Came in Contact With Live Wires.

Last evening about 6 o'clock, E. Sherman, of west High street, a lineman employed by the Lima Electric Railway & Light Co., while at work at the top of a pole on west Market street, came in contact with a network of live wires and had both of his hands frightfully burned. He was rescued from his perilous position by fellow workmen but narrowly escaped being electrocuted.

Tuesday evening a crowd of Central Union Telephone Co. employees were raising a pole at the south side of the public square, a workman named Fred Lewis, had two fingers of one hand severely mashed and very narrowly missed having his head crushed under the weight of the pole.

VETERANS

Of the 99th in Reunion at Delphos.

Regiment Organized at Camp Lima, August 1862,

And Entered the Service Under Bragg Who Took Them Where the Shot and Shell was the Thickest.

The twenty-fifth reunion of the 99th regiment was held at Delphos yesterday and continued over today, and there were an unusually large number in attendance, members of the various companies coming from St. Marys, Ottawa, Leipsic, Findlay, Sidney, Van Wert, Middlepoint, Celina, Ohio City, Ada, Spencerville, Rushmore, New Stark, Harrod, Wetzel, Defiance, Chataanooga, Deweyville, Coldwater, Buckland, Lima and from the country. Peter Osborn and James S. Holland, of this city, who belonged to Co. E, and William H. Jennings to Co. K, were in attendance.

The 99th Ohio was organized in August of 1862, at Camp Lima, with Col. Lippewerthy, Lieut. Col. Cummings, Major James H. Day, Adjutant Ben. Le Fevre. They went into service in Kentucky immediately, in the campaign after Bragg. Was in the battles of Perryville, Stone River, Mission, Lookout Mountain, Chickamauga, Mission Ridge, Atlanta Campaign, Nashville and others.

After the number for duty were reduced to less than one-fourth, it was consolidated with the 50th regiment and mustered out at the end of the war. Nearly full three years active service in the field, with Lieut. Colonel Jas. A. Pope, Major Ben. Le Fevre and Adjutant E. B. Walkup.

At the same time the 99th was organized, the 113th was also organized at Camp Lima, under the same calls. These two regiments were organized in the congressional district composed of Allen county and others near by. The 99th saw service from the Ohio river to below Atlanta, Georgia. The regiment was constantly at the front and never out of detached duty. They have a record of which the boys may well be proud. Of the total number of 1,200 who went into service, there are only about 300 surviving today, whose ages will probably average over 60 years. Part of three companies, A, B and E, were enlisted for the 99th from Delphos and in the country near by. A dozen would be a full number to now answer to roll call from Delphos and immediate vicinity.

Of Death Ended His Sufferings

This Morning.

Father Follows Son to the Other World.

Joseph Sanders, Well Known Blacksmith Passes to Rest.

Died at 3 O'clock This Morning from Heart Trouble—Funeral Will be Held Saturday Afternoon.

The hand of death has again fallen heavily upon the family circle at the home of the Sanders family at 610 south Pine street, and this time the husband and father has been the one to respond to the silent whisper's summons. Joseph T. Sanders, aged about 52 years, was the victim of the last visit of the angel of death, his demise occurring at 3 o'clock this morning.

The deceased was born at Turlington, Ohio, and was a son of James and Jane Sanders. He came to this city many years ago and for quite a number of years and up until the time of the beginning of his fatal illness he was employed at the L. E. & W. shops. He was a blacksmith by trade and for many years he was as familiar a figure at the belt heading machine in the machine shops as was the machine itself. He was a faithful and reliable workman and was a good citizen.

Follows His Son.
On August 25, less than four weeks ago, Jos. Sanders' eldest son, James Sanders, a popular young man who had learned the machinists' trade in the shop where his father was employed, died from appendicitis. The young man had a large circle of friends and the funeral was one of the largest ever held on the south side. The father who has so soon followed his son to the world beyond, was a loyal friend and a good neighbor and also had many friends.

Joseph Sanders had been in failing health for the past year but his last and fatal illness began about the time of the death of his son. Heart trouble was the immediate cause of death. The funeral will be held from the deceased's late residence at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The services will be conducted by Rev. W. H. Lenthorn and interment will be made in Woodlawn cemetery.

The deceased is survived by his wife and one son.

Do not forget that Colonel Kilbourne, the Democratic candidate for governor, will be in attendance at the Allen county fair on Thursday, September 26. Everyone in Allen county should see this man of the people during his visit to Allen county. d&wt

Clara L. Nelson.

Miss Clara L. Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Nelson, of 782 west Wayne street, died this morning at 1:30 o'clock, after an illness from lung trouble. Miss Nelson had a large circle of friends who will be grieved to learn of her young life being ended. She was born December 29, 1877 and spent a greater part of her life in this city. The funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon but the time and place have not been decided upon.

Do not forget that Colonel Kilbourne, the Democratic candidate for governor, will be in attendance at the Allen county fair on Thursday, September 26. Everyone in Allen county should see this man of the people during his visit to Allen county. d&wt

Freight Wreck

Occurs on the Pennsy Near Forest.

Wreck Crews were Called from Crestline and Ft. Wayne.

Two West Bound and Three East Bound Passenger Trains Detoured Around the Scene of the Accident.

The first wreck of any consequence that has occurred on the Ft. Wayne-Crestline division of the P. Ft. W. & C. railroad for several months befell an east bound freight train on that road early this morning at a point between the stations of Dunkirk and Forest. The train was running at a rapid rate of speed when a truck under one end of a box car broke and in an instant several cars were piled up in a confused mass of debris. The cars were badly wrecked and the track was so badly torn up and blocked that both the wreck crew from Ft. Wayne and the one from Crestline were hurried to the scene.

Fortunately no one was injured in the wreck but the track was so badly blocked that traffic was considerably delayed before the debris was cleared away by the wreck crews. East bound passenger trains Nos. 6, 18, and 36 were sent around the scene of the wreck via Dunkirk, the T. & O. C., Kenton and the Big Four to Forest.
West bound passenger trains Nos. 21 and 39 were transferred around the wreck over the same lines. The track was cleared by the wreck crews this afternoon.

RUNAWAY

Accident Occurred on East High Street, Today.

Young Lady from Near Bluffton Thrown Out of a Vehicle and Painfully Injured.

Shortly before noon today a runaway accident occurred which resulted quite seriously. Miss Steiner and her brother who live near Bluffton drove to this city this morning behind a team of spirited horses. Mr. Steiner had occasion to stop on east High street to transact some business and his sister held the horses. While so engaged, the animals became frightened and ran away. Miss Steiner was precipitated forcibly to the street and the team dashed madly on. Passersby tenderly carried the injured woman into a house occupied by a family named Moyer, where medical assistance was summoned. It was found that the victim of the unfortunate affair had suffered a severe scalp wound and was badly shocked by the fall.
Jones & Williams' ambulance was called but Miss Steiner stated, when it arrived, that she was strong enough to return to her home without it.
